REPORT.

IN preparing this, the fifth Class Report, I have endeavored to include within its necessarily restricted limits a brief summary of the lives of the members of the Class since graduation. In some cases the record is incomplete, owing to my inability to obtain the desired information. During the eight years which have elapsed since the last Report was printed, many changes have taken place, and some members I have found myself unable to reach. Others have failed to respond to my communications; and I have been obliged to gather the facts concerning them indirectly, or to leave their record as it was last printed, and therefore incomplete.

I shall be glad to receive information, with addresses, concerning Ames, Peele, Seavey, Sherman, and Taft. I also hope that members will bring promptly to my attention such errors and omissions as they may discover in the Report, in order that the proper corrections may be made.

Since the last Report four members have died, — Horton, Low, Lowell, and Merrick. Full sketches of their lives, prepared in accordance with the rules of the Class, will be found in the Report. I would call special attention to the clause from Merrick's will by which $5,000 was left to the College to establish a scholarship, the benefits of which are primarily intended for descendants of the Class of 1870.

The tables of statistics show that of the original 130 members at graduation, 15 have died, 88 have been married, and that there have been 177 births.

In April last, I was authorized by the Class Committee to issue a circular calling for additional subscriptions for the Class Fund. It was found that the income from the Fund, while sufficient to meet the current expenses, did not warrant drafts for printing reports and providing the occasional Class dinners, and the Committee were anxious to avoid any further encroachment upon the principal. Of the $2,000 asked for, about $1,100 has already been subscribed, and it is hoped that the remainder will be forthcoming before the close of the year. It is desirable that as large a number of the Class as possible should be represented in this Fund, even if the individual subscriptions are not large.

The Fund, including new subscriptions already paid, amounts now to $2,745.89; there are due on new subscriptions $450, making the total $3,195.89. This should be increased to $4,000. A summary of the receipts and expenditures will be found at the end of the Report.

The necessity of some formal action in regard to the final disposition of this Fund, when it shall no longer be needed by the Class, was the reason for asking a vote on this question. I have thus far received fifty-six votes, fifty-three of which are in the affirmative. A few members in writing to me, while not voting, suggested modifications or conditions; but the number was so small that the result of the vote as an expression of opinion was not affected. Such final action as may be necessary will be taken at the meeting on Commencement.

Immediately after graduation, went abroad; in the following summer returned to Boston, and entered the office of Lee, Higginson, & Co., brokers; on Jan. 1, 1874, opened an office in Boston, as a stock and note broker, and was admitted a member of the Boston Stock Exchange; on July 1, 1879, formed a partnership with C. C. Jackson ('63) and F. Jackson ('71), under the firm name of Jackson & Curtis. Passed three months in Europe in the summer of 1883, and again in the summer of 1887. Office, 24 Congress Street, Boston.

CURTIS, LOUIS. Spent the summer of 1870 in France and England; in November, 1870, entered the office of Brown Brothers & Co., bankers, 66 State Street, Boston; and on Jan. 1, 1878, Curtis and George E. Bullard were appointed agents and attorneys in Boston for this firm, and for Brown, Shipley, & Co., of London and Liverpool. Has travelled extensively in this country and in Europe.

CURTIS, REST F. Has been engaged in teaching, since graduation, at East Weymouth, Mass., Newport, R. I., Framingham, Mass., and Boston; since 1882 has been one of the teachers in Chauncy Hall School, and since 1884 has been at the head of the Mathematical Department. Business address, Chauncy Hall School, Boston. Home address, 146 Falmouth Street, Boston.

CUSHING, LOUIS T. Was engaged in farming in Madison, Wis., until November, 1872, when he moved to Cohasset, Mass., where he resides. Studied law in the Boston University, receiving the degree of LL.B. June 2, 1875, and was admitted to the bar June 5, 1875; is practising at Cohasset. Since 1883 has been actively engaged in sheep and cattle ranching in Tom Green County, Texas; and he passes a portion of each year on his ranch. On Feb. 14, 1871, was married to Mary Rebecca Johnson, of Cohasset. The births of their children have been as follows: on May 2, 1872, Thomas Johnson; on Dec. 31, 1873, Charles Baldwin; on Jan. 6, 1876, William Fabens; on Sept. 17, 1877, Robert Lee; on Nov. 25, 1884, Richard Watson; and on Nov. 9, 1886, Sally Fabens.

CUTLER, ARTHUR H. After graduation, and until the autumn of 1873, was with Walter Brown & Son, wool commission-merchants, New York; since then has been engaged in teaching in the same city; in the autumn of 1876 started a private school for preparing boys for college, and is still occupied with it.

* DAVIS, FRANK DU PONT. After graduation he went into the house of Blake Brothers & Co., of Boston, to learn the business of banking. The department of the business to which he devoted himself was commercial paper. He remained with the Boston house about two years, when he was transferred to the New York house of the same firm. He at once made himself an important place in the house, attending chiefly to the paper dealt in, buying and selling for the firm, and himself conducting large transactions. He very soon became so well acquainted with the dealers and the market, that his judgment was much relied on. In the summer of 1875 Mr. F. P. Olcott, one of the members of the firm of Blake Brothers & Co., with Davis, formed a partnership under the name of F. P. Olcott & Co., for the purpose of dealing in commercial paper. This new firm at once began to do a large business, being at one time agents for the State of New York for placing certain of its securities. To the great disappointment of Davis, Mr. Olcott, in the early part of 1877, was induced to accept the office of comptroller of the State of New York, which he did, as he supposed temporarily, retaining his business connection in some degree with Davis, but leaving upon Davis's young shoulders the burden of their business. It was in the summer or spring after this that the constitutional weakness began to develop itself, which afterwards entirely wrecked his health. There is little reason to doubt that had it not been for his constant and enforced devotion to his business this year, and the care and anxiety it gave him, standing as he did alone, his health would not have been so rapidly impaired. He was able to give himself no rest, when rest was the best and almost the only remedy. This position of affairs lasted until the summer of 1878, when Davis's health utterly broke down, and he very suddenly gave up everything, and, under the orders of his physicians, went to France. The last year of his life was spent in the South of France, and in Nice, where he died in June, 1879.

DEANE, WALTER. In September, 1871, became instructor at St. Mark's School, Southborough, Mass., where he remained until July, 1878; since then has been teaching in Mr. Hopkinson's private school, 29 Chestnut Street, Boston. Was married, on Dec. 31, 1878, to Margaret C. Coolidge, daughter of Rev. J. I. T. Coolidge, of St. Mark's School, Southborough.

DEXTER, NEWTON. Studied law until December, 1871, when he accepted a position on the staff of the "New York World," where he remained until June, 1874, when he became editor of the "Rocky Mountain News," at Denver, Col.; in July, 1876, joined the editorial staff of the "New York Sun." At present is travelling abroad.

DIXON, A. J. D. Studied law with Morton P. Henry, Philadelphia, and was admitted to the bar June 26, 1873; passed the summer of 1873 in Europe; is residing, and practising law, in Philadelphia, his office address being 206 South 5th Street. Is an associate editor of the "Legal Intelligencer," the oldest law journal published in the United States. Was married, on Nov. 27, 1878, to Margaretta Sergeant, of Harrisburg, Penn.

DIXWELL, JOHN. Entered the Harvard Medical School in the fall of 1870; graduated with the degree of M.D., 1873; has practised ever since, having his house and office at 52 West Cedar Street. Has been the general agent of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children; director of the Industrial Aid Society of Boston; physician to the Boston Dispensary; member of the Boston Natural History Society, American Society for the Advancement of Science, Boston Medical Benevolent Society, Boston Medical Library Association; visitor for the Boston Provident Society; etc. Is interested in industrial and charitable works here and elsewhere. Professional specialty of greatest interest thus far, diseases of the lungs and heart. Is married.

DODGE, WILLIAM W. Travelled abroad after graduation, and on his return devoted a year to the study of English and German literature, attending some courses of University Lectures; after a few months in an office, entered the Harvard Law School in 1871; received the degree of LL.B. in June, 1873, and was admitted to the bar in July, 1874; is practising in Boston. Residence, Cambridge, Mass.

DREW, CHARLES A. After graduation, studied law; was admitted to the bar July 1, 1873, and is practising in Boston. Travelled in Europe from June to November, 1871. On August 3, 1875, was married to Hattie W. Clark, of Chelsea, Mass.; and on July 10, 1876, Bertha Vincent Drew was born. Residence, Newton, Mass.

DUDLEY, EDWARD. After graduation, travelled in Europe and the East, returning in October, 1871; was then appointed United States deputy consul at Liverpool, England; was soon after made vice-consul, having full charge of the consulate; returned to America in January, 1873; studied law at Camden, N. J., with Peter L. Voorhees, Esq., and began to practise as attorney-at-law in November, 1874; is practising at Camden; in November, 1877, was admitted as counsellor-at-law; in February, 1878, was appointed by the chancellor of New Jersey a special master of the Court of Chancery; was also appointed a Supreme Court commissioner. On May 21, 1878, was married to Mary Shaw Bird, of Philadelphia; and on April 1, 1879, Edward Lawrence Dudley was born. Mrs. Dudley died April 25, 1879. Nov. 15, 1881, was married to Mary Thurber Brooks, of Providence; and on June 11, 1884, May Irene Dudley was born. Mrs. Dudley died May 12, 1886. Residence, The Grange, Camden, N. J.

DWIGHT, JOHN F. In October, 1870, opened an English classical school for both sexes, called the Rahway Institute, in Rahway, N. J., where he remained until August, 1876, when he was appointed master of the Johnson School in Woburn, Mass.; the following year became master of the Cummings School in the same town; and in November, 1877, was appointed a sub-master in the Lincoln School, South Boston, which position he still retains. On Dec. 18, 1873, was married to Helen Louise Woodruff, of Rahway; and on March 28, 1875, Helen Hastings Dwight was born; Bernard Woodruff Dwight was born March 30, 1881, and died Jan. 7, 1882; Edith Marion Dwight was born August 13, 1883; and John Francis Dwight, Oct. 20, 1885. Residence, Weymouth, Mass.

EMOTT, CHARLES C. Studied law in New York; received the degree of LL.B. in 1872; practised law in New York from 1873 to 1882, when he became secretary of the John J. Crooke Company, a corporation engaged in the manufacture of tin and lead foil. Is a member of the University Club in New York, and of the Society of the Cincinnati, Rhode Island Chapter. Was married, May 22, 1873, to Leila C. Tuckerman, of Cambridge, Mass. Has one son, James, now fourteen years old, and preparing for college.

* EVANS, A. OTIS. Was the son of Hosea Ballou Evans and of Harriet French (sister of Hon. Jonas H. French), and was born in Boston, May 26, 1847. He was brought up in the public schools of his native city; was graduated from the Brimmer (Grammar) School in 1860, receiving a Franklin medal; entered the English High School the same year. In 1862 he was awarded a prize for "excellence in the literary department," and the next year he received one for "general merit." After leaving the High School he spent a few months in Europe, confining himself principally to the study of German in Hanover; returning to Boston in the fall of 1865, he took a short course in the Public Latin School, and entered Harvard College in 1866, from which he was graduated in the year 1870. After a year spent in commercial pursuits in New York, he returned to Cambridge, and entered the Dane Law School, remaining one year there; and then attended the Boston University Law School for another year, receiving from the latter institution his degree of LL.B. in 1873. After a few months of study in the office of Brooks & Ball, he began the practice of the law in November, 1873, and was prosperous from the beginning. His health failing him, he went on an extensive tour West in the winter of 1877, going by steamer from New York to San Francisco, and travelling for six months in California and other Western States. In the winter of 1878 he went South for his health; returned the following May, evidently improved, and remained in Boston until his death, September, 1879.

FERNALD, BENJAMIN M. Entered the law office of Judge Wiggin, Exeter, N. H., where he studied until April 16, 1873, when he was admitted to the Rockingham bar and to a partnership with Judge Wiggin, with offices in Exeter and Boston; was made justice of the peace, and police justice for the town of Exeter; taught a grammar-school from September, 1871, until July, 1872; since Jan. 1, 1876, has practised in Boston. In 1881 and 1882 represented the town of Melrose in the Legislature of Massachusetts; was chairman of the Committee on Taxation there in 1881, and was on the Judiciary Committee in 1882. * HEALY, JOSEPH. Was born in Boston, August 6, 1849, and was the only child of John Plummer Healy and Mary Stickney (Barker) Healy. For four years he attended the Chauncy Hall School; in the fall of 1860 he entered the Boston Public Latin School, where he completed the full term of six years, winning during the course twenty-one Lawrence prizes, and being graduated at the head of his class, with first prize for declamation and first Franklin medal. Entering college without conditions, he was a diligent and successful student, joining the Phi Beta Kappa in his Junior year. Upon graduation he began the study of law as a student in his father's office, and in the fall of 1871 entered the Harvard Law School, where he received the degree of LL.B. in 1873; the summer of 1872 was passed in Europe. Healy was admitted to the bar Sept. 16, 1873, and at once began to practise law in Boston, in partnership with Otis

Norcross, Jr. ('70), the firm of Healy & Norcross continuing until his death. He was admitted to practise in the Supreme Court of the United States, at Washington, D. C., March 22, 1880. He was one of the trustees of the valuable estate of the late Peter B. Brigham and of the Franklin Savings Bank of Boston; secretary and treasurer of the Boston Latin School Association; vice-president of the Young Men's Benevolent Society; a member of the Boston Bar Association, the Union, St. Botolph, Pendennis, and Boston Antiquarian Clubs, the Boston Memorial Society, and the Bunker Hill Monument Association; and at the time of his death was serving his second term as a member of the Boston Common Council. In the year 1878 he delivered, in the Boston Music Hall, the annual Fourth of July oration before the City Government. He married, Sept. 26, 1877, in Brookline, Mass., Alice Hale Bird, who, with his father and mother and a daughter (Helen Richards Healy, born May 26, 1878), survives him. After leaving college Healy enjoyed his usual good health. Friday morning, April 16, 1880, he awoke in severe pain, but having an early business engagement, he rode to his office; the pain increasing, he soon returned home, saying that he would be back in two or three hours. His family physician was at once summoned, but did not relieve him. The cause of his illness proved to be peritonitis, accompanied by hernia. Saturday, though very weak, he was thought to be out of danger; but he did not rally, and died shortly before midnight on Sunday, April 18. He was buried from King's Chapel, April 22, the character of the audience which filled the church attesting the estimation in which he was held by his friends and the community. His classmates will appreciate the justice of the following tribute, written by one of their number, which appeared editorially in the "Boston Daily Advertiser," on the day after his funeral:—

"It seldom happens, in a city so large as ours, that the death of so young a man as Joseph Healy is so manifest a loss to the whole community; and yet, to those who have always known him, he has seemed to be only steadily and consistently fulfilling the promises of his early youth. Blessed with excellent abilities and an untiring industry, the tasks at school which others of perhaps equal ability but less application sometimes mastered, he never failed to master ; and that he should lead his class and gain the most of the prizes which the Latin School could award followed almost as a matter of course.

“ Entering Harvard thus prepared, and doing his college work with the same ability and fidelity that had characterized him at school, he was graduated with high standing in the largest class that had then left the college, and was ready to enter on the work of his profession and of his life. And now was developed a generous public spirit which was alone necessary to round out and complement a character whose capacity for increasing the general good seemed almost without limit. Circumstances favored him ; but there are few enough who will conscientiously do the work which others from day to day assign them. There are fewer still who will cheerfully and conscientiously do thankless work, however praiseworthy, which they have assigned themselves. It was desirable, for instance, that interest should be revived in the Boston Young Men’s Benevolent Society, whose founders long since ceased to be young men. Clearly, whoever revived that interest would only have his trouble to reward his pains ; but Healy interested himself and his friends in the cause, and with substantial results. Again, it was well for Boston and her most famous school that the Latin School Association should be made an active organization ; and so, though never making himself particularly prominent, he did the work which has gone far toward making the society a permanent instrument for good. And so the list might be extended of cases in which he quietly did disinterested labor for the general welfare. Faithful and intelligent service in the Common Council was bringing him into a larger circle of acquaintance and recognition ; but the qualities which commanded universal respect and esteem in the Council-chamber were only the results of the development of his early principles and character in a larger field. The purpose of this notice is merely to mention certain points of character which made the subject of this sketch a man whom the community could ill afford to lose. Of the further qualities which endeared him to his domestic and social circles this is not the place to speak. Let it be simply said that his fidelity to his duty was only equalled by his fidelity to his friends.”

HILL, JOHN E. Until the spring of 1873 was with John Hill & Co., manufacturers and dealers in boots and shoes, Boston; then carried on the same business under the firm name of John E. Hill & Co.; for the past two years has been engaged as selling agent in the same line of business.

* LORING, FRED W. Was born Dec. 12, 1849, in Boston. His parents were David and Mary Hall (Stodder) Loring. He entered college from the Phillips Academy, Andover, in 1866, and was graduated with the Class. Having chosen journalism as his profession, he devoted himself to that work, contributing articles to several of the leading periodicals; some of his writings were issued in book form. In 1871 he accompanied a United States expedition to the West, as correspondent of "Appletons' Journal;" and while on this expedition was killed by the Apache-Mohave Indians, the stage on which he was travelling being attacked a short distance from Wickenburg, Arizona, and all but two of the occupants murdered. This occurred Nov. 5, 1871. His age was twenty-one years and nine months.

* LOW, ETHELBERT MILLS. Was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 1, 1848, and was the eldest son of Josiah O. Low and Martha Elizabeth (Mills) Low. His early school life was passed at the Brooklyn Collegiate and Polytechnic Institute; at the age of fifteen he was obliged to leave school on account of ill health, and his studies were continued under private tutors. During his preparation for college he gave great attention to his health, and by careful and diligent practice in and out of the gymnasium, he came to Harvard strong and well; this practice he continued faithfully through college, and easily took rank among the best oarsmen, boxers, and gymnasts of his time. He was a faithful and conscientious student; was a member of the Institute of 1770, the Δ K E and O K Societies, and the Hasty Pudding Club; and at the beginning of his Junior year he accepted the position of captain of the University Crew, but after a few weeks, yielding to the advice of his family and physician, resigned and gave up college boating. Soon after graduation he travelled around the world with his father, mother, and sister. Upon his return home in the fall of 1871, he entered the business house of A. A. Low & Brothers, and in a short time was placed at the head of their tea department. Jan. 1, 1875, he became a member of that firm, and continued so up to the time of his death. While giving the strictest attention to business, he yet found time for other duties and for a large amount of reading, the very good library he had in his college room in Garden Street having become an excellent one at his home in Brooklyn; he kept himself well informed upon all literary and scientific matters, and his familiarity with almost every subject that might arise in course of conversation was a striking characteristic. He gave much time to the study of languages and to music: he was an active member, and for some while president of the leading Brooklyn Glee Club; he was secretary of the Art Association of Brooklyn, and a prominent and busy member of the Hamilton Literary Society. He took a great interest in politics; and he was one of the leaders in the movement for municipal reform in Brooklyn, which resulted (since his death) in the election of his cousin and business partner, Mr. Seth Low, to the mayoralty. In every way he was a gentleman, quiet and dignified. His letters (private and public) and his conversation were brilliant, entertaining, and witty; he had a genuine love for fun, and was a favorite in every social circle. Low married, June 6, 1878, Mary L. Ide, of Brooklyn. He purchased a house in Grace Court, near his father's residence ; and here his only child, Ethelbert Ide Low, was born, April 25, 1880. Both wife and son survive him. Soon after his return from abroad in 1871, he became troubled with dyspepsia ; by care and exercise he kept himself for the most of the year in good health, but often in March was obliged to leave his business. During the last two years of his life he was not so well, which in part may have been due to an accident while riding, which deprived him of the full use of one wrist, and thus of the exercise so essential to him. In February, 1881, he caught a severe cold after singing in a concert. Not ridding himself of it readily, he went to a favorite place at the seashore for change of air and out-of-door life. At first he improved, but again taking cold he became much run down, and returned to Brooklyn. On April 28, by the advice of his physicians, he went to Philadelphia to place himself under the care of Drs. Mitchell and Sinkler. Again everything looked promising for him, when his digestion failed him and he was taken to Atlantic City. Here in July he was suddenly taken with bowel trouble, and was carried back to Philadelphia, where he died a week later, at four o'clock in the afternoon of July 29, 1881. His funeral took place from his father's house in Brooklyn, August 1, 1881. He was buried in Greenwood Cemetery. From an obituary notice, written by an old friend, who had known Low intimately since graduation, the few lines following are taken :—

“The pride and joy of his family circle, he was a devoted son and brother, and a most affectionate husband and father. As he took leave finally of the near and dear ones, the scene was very touching, while yet the emaciated sufferer was calm and triumphant. He was willing and glad to go, if such was the mind of his Heavenly Father. It was the evident will of God ; and so, saying his last adieus to those who were standing at his bedside, sending messages of love to absent friends and relatives, and asking that his infant son should be brought up to be a God-fearing man, he passed peacefully away. He had already realized a strong and well-rounded character. His manhood, like his youth, was stainless ; and for all the devotion and care which parents had extended to him in his education and training, he returned, in all that he was and did, a full measure of reward, pressed down and running over.”

* LOWELL, PERCEVAL. Was born in Newark, N. J. Nov. 13, 1850, the eldest son of Robert Traill Spence (Harvard, '33) and Mary Anne (Duane) Lowell; was prepared for college at the Cambridge High School, entering with the Class in 1866. After graduation he engaged in the railroad business, in which he continued until compelled by ill health to resign his position on the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway. During the sixteen years devoted to this work he occupied the following important positions: until April 1, 1874, was cashier and paymaster of the Burlington and Missouri River Railroad, at Burlington, Iowa, and secretary and auditor of the Quincy, Alton and St. Louis Railway Company, at Quincy, Ill.; Streator, Ill., April 1, 1874, auditor and general ticket agent of the Chicago, Pekin, and South Western Railroad; Omaha, May 3, 1876, general ticket agent of the Burlington and Missouri Railway, in Nebraska, and Leased Lines; Nov. 1, 1876, acting general freight agent of the same; Nov. 1, 1877, general freight and ticket agent of the same; March 17, 1879, "in the absence of the general manager, all matters connected with the interests of the road will be referred to Perceval Lowell, general freight agent, who will have jurisdiction;" June 1, 1880, assistant general manager of the same; May 13, 1881, general passenger and ticket agent, Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy Railway; Oct. 1, 1886, resigned his office, being in Southern California on account of ill health. Lowell died on Dec. 9, 1887.

From an article in the "Boston Transcript," of Feb. 17, 1888, the following interesting extracts have been taken:—

"Perceval Lowell died a few weeks since of consumption, in Southern California. Some words about him are called for by his many friends, thousands of miles asunder, and may be not unwelcome to others; for he was one of those who live for more than themselves, and who leave a worthy example. Though young, he had achieved in a short life a wider influence than common, and greater than common success in his work, which beforehand might have been thought not very congenial to him, and had won respect from those who had dealings with him and love of those who knew him, both more and stronger than common.

“From his earliest childhood, in Newark, N. J. (where his father, the author of ‘The New Priest,’ had a parish), and next in a rural parish in New York, he was always manly and trusty, and a champion of the younger and weaker. He was believed in and referred to, at his early schools, by children and teachers alike. Later, at the Cambridge High School, preparing for Harvard, and afterwards at the University, he was, during the term-time of each year, under the tutelage of his aunt, the late well-known Mrs. Anna Cabot Lowell.

“From home influences, and school and University, high-spirited, generous, well-bred, with a fine taste, and a cultivated love of thoughtful and scholarly reading, and taking to himself gladly, as a rule of life, the knowledge that, under God, he must win his own success by his own character and work, he went at his graduation, in 1870, to the West. He had chosen for the business of his life railroad work, in which was offered him a place to begin not far from the bottom, as he was more than ready to do.

“Beginning, then, where he could find a place, he was moved about in the first years, as a young man must be, from one post to another, but continually gained in estimation, and was advanced to trusts beyond his years. Experience showed that to his strength of character and attractiveness of manners were added remarkable and rare abilities for business and dealing with men. His power of mastering and accomplishing work was wonderful, as is probably the case with all very successful men.

“It was described by one who had seen it with the eyes of an expert, — a well-known railroad man, — referring to the greatness of the loss inflicted by Mr. Lowell’s withdrawal for ill-health, ‘He did the work of two men; he could and he did. No one else could keep up with it.’

“But all along, beside what was seen and approved of, in his own department was a great deal that was unknown, and, as need not be said, unpaid, but especially characteristic of him. More than one man was brought out of the despair of tangled and broken accounts by the intelligent work, through long nights, of his free-hearted young neighbor; and many a youth has been set forward by him, and cheered on or checked, and has been shown a good way. His own words give the rule by which he acted: ‘I suppose there’s nothing better, while we’re in this world, than to help others as much as we can.’

"To the last he was thoughtful for others, not for himself. To the last he was making new and warm friends. One of these, who was with him at the end, wrote: 'If I were to express one hope for the future of my little son, it would be that he might, some day, make as true a man and as perfect a gentleman as Mr. Perceval Lowell. So "qualis ab incepto processit, servabatur ad imum."'

"He passed away gently, in the faith and hope of a Christian man. God give him rest eternal!"

LUNT, HORACE G. Studied law in Chicago; was admitted to the bar Jan. 10, 1873; practised law in Chicago until January, 1886, when ill health compelled him to abandon both his profession and home. Resided a year at San Jose, Cal.; afterwards went to Colorado, and at present is living in Colorado Springs, Col. Sept. 3, 1874, was married to Caroline K. Isaacs, of Chicago. The births of their children have been as follows: Horace F. Lunt, June 3, 1875; Nina M. Lunt, June 7, 1877; Regina Lunt, Oct. 1, 1879; Carolyn Lunt, Feb. 8, 1884; Lawrence K. Lunt, June 12, 1886.

McCALL, HARRY W. Passed about three years in Europe, studying and travelling, returning in September, 1873; since then his time has been divided between Philadelphia and Louisiana, where he is managing a sugar-plantation. On Oct. 1, 1878, was married to Phebe Warren Ingersoll, of Philadelphia. Residence, Germantown, Penn.

McMICHAEL, CHARLES B. Began the study of law in September, 1870, and was admitted to the bar in Philadelphia, in June, 1872, where he now practises. Office, 132 South 3d Street. On June 7, 1877, was married to Anna Mallet Provost, of Philadelphia; and on Feb. 18, 1879, Caroline McMichael was born. [No report.]

MANN, B. PICKMAN. After travelling in this country, went to Brazil in November, 1870, and entered upon the duties of entomologist to the Government of Brazil, where he remained until June, 1871. His profession is that of lecturer and instructor in entomology and botany. Is secretary of the entomological section of the Boston Society of Natural History, of the Entomological Club of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and of the Cambridge Entomological Club; and is the bibliographical editor of the "Psyche," the organ of the latter association. From July 15 to August 17, 1878, was instructor in entomology at the Martha's Vineyard Summer Institute; from Sept. 17 to Nov. 10, 1879, conducted a private school in Boston, with Miss Mary W. Mitchell; during February, 1880, was temporary assistant at the Dudley School, Roxbury; in the early part of 1879, and again in 1880, was employed at the Harvard College Observatory, where he was engaged in observing and computing; was appointed in July, 1881, assistant entomologist of the United States Department of Agriculture, entering upon his duties Sept. 1, 1881. On July 1, 1882, became "assistant in the Entomological Division" of the Department of Agriculture, a change in nomenclature without change of work, and retained that position until Dec. 31, 1886, when from a temporary exhaustion of funds in that division he was transferred to another, and put in charge of the re-arrangement and cataloguing of the Library of the Department of Agriculture. But from August 9, 1886, he had represented the Department of Agriculture as a member of the Board of Examiners of the United States Civil Service Commission; and in March, 1887, his time was demanded wholly by the Commission, which gave occasion for a successful attempt by the Agricultural Department to free itself from what each department considers a burden,—namely, the obligation to furnish from its pay-roll one or more members of a board performing no specific work for the department. Not being a clerk, a technical point was raised; and on April 30, 1887, he was discharged from the Agricultural Department for lack of funds properly applicable to his employment by the Civil Service Commission. He remained with the Civil Service Commission ten days longer, pending a solution of the question of his status, and then retired to private life. On May 18 he passed a general Civil Service Examination, getting a percentage of 98.01, the highest ever attained; and on the 19th was appointed a clerk by the Civil Service Commission itself, and returned to his former duties after an interval of eight days. At the end of July he resigned his position, to take a short rest and attend to some business; and refusing an appointment in the Post-Office Department in August, he accepted a place in the Surgeon-General's office of the War Department on September 19. On June 4 he had passed an examination before the Civil Service Commission for the position of Assistant Examiner in the Patent Office, and in October received an appointment in accordance therewith, entering upon his duties on October 19, when he was again detailed to the Central Board of Examiners of the Civil Service Commission for two weeks, to help bring up arrears, and then settled down to work in which he hopes to continue for a good while. Having served for the six months' probation required by the Civil Service law, he has received his permanent appointment, dated April 19, 1888. He writes: "Whatever others may say of the workings of the Civil Service law, I can only say for myself that I have had a fair show, not having had to ask any man for influence or recommendation beyond the requirements of the law itself." He was secretary and treasurer of the Cambridge Entomological Club until October, 1881; treasurer until January, 1888; president in 1883 (another treasurer having been elected in that year, but failing to serve). He has been treasurer of the Entomological Society of Washington since the establishment of the Society in 1884; is also vice-president of the Charity Organization Society of the District of Columbia. On July 12, 1878, was married to Louisa C. F. Van de Sande. Residence, Washington, D. C.

* MERRICK, WILLIAM. Was born in Springfield, Mass., Sept. 10, 1849; was the son of Solyman and Anné Sophia (Clapp) Merrick. Was prepared for college at Professor Charlier's French school in New York, entering with the Class in 1866. He was a member of the $\Phi B K$, ΠH , and Natural History Society. The following account of Merrick's life is taken from the "Springfield Republican" of Jan. 18, 1887:

“After leaving college he took a course in architecture at the Boston Institute of Technology. He was a good musician, an accomplished French scholar, and generally a well-educated man. Since his school and college work was completed he has lived quietly at home, taking care of his property and managing some special trusts. He was a man of exceptionally retiring and modest disposition, not at all fond of society, and content to live within a small circle; but to those few who knew him intimately he manifested many most attractive and admirable traits. He seemed to be peculiarly qualified for offices of trust, and was the soul of honor and uprightness. Methodical, thorough, and well-balanced, he managed his own, and the interests of others intrusted to him with ability, conservatism, care, and precision. He always gave generously to good causes that appealed to him. He was fond of his college associations, and kept up a close intimacy with a few of his classmates.

“Mr. Merrick retained his father’s large interest in the Gas Company, and a year ago was elected treasurer, to succeed the late J. D. Brewer. He enjoyed the duties that the position gave him, and discharged them well. He was a director of the John Hancock Bank, and a director and on the finance committee of the City Library, in which he was much interested, and for the endowment of which he had promised fifteen hundred dollars when the full amount of sixty thousand dollars should be completed. For a time he was also a trustee of the City Hospital, and was a member and trustee of the Winthrop Club. He was one of the syndicate that recently bought the Bliss lot, next to the City Library, to save it for a park. He grew up in the Unitarian church, usually attended its services, and gave liberally for its support. Altogether, though so quiet a person, he was a valuable member of society, and was becoming more and more so. His death is therefore a real loss to the community.”

Merrick died suddenly, on Jan. 17, 1887, of congestion of the brain. The following extract from his will (which was made up largely of charitable bequests) will be of interest :

“To the President and Fellows of Harvard College, a corporation established by law, its successors and assigns, I give and bequeath the sum of five thousand dollars, to found a scholarship, the income of said sum of five thousand dollars to be paid to some meritorious undergraduate, descendants of members of the Class of 1870 to have the preference."

MITCHELL, CHARLES L. Was abroad until February, 1872, passing the greater portion of the time at Dresden, studying German; after his return, studied law, and practised as a member of the firm of Mitchell & Holmes, in Cincinnati, Ohio. On June 7, 1879, was married to Mary E. Holmes. In 1880 he gave up the practice of law, and became interested in a gold-mining venture in Dawson County, Ga., where he spent two years. In 1882 he returned to Holmesdale, Ky., where his son, Daniel Holmes Mitchell, was born, Dec. 25, 1882; and on February 27 his wife died. During the following year he closed up his law business, and left the profession permanently. In 1884 and 1885 he built extensive houses for forcing roses at Oakley, Ohio, near Cincinnati, and since then has been devoting himself to the business of growing roses. On Jan. 5, 1887, married May Suter; and on Jan. 6, 1888, his daughter Madeline was born. Address, Oakley, Hamilton County, Ohio.

REPORTS OF BUSINESS MEETINGS.

FIRST MEETING, OCT. 12, 1871.

THE meeting was held at the Tremont House, Boston, by a call from the Secretary, to take action on the death of our classmate Stephen Van Rensselaer Thayer.

In the absence of the Secretary, the meeting was called to order at 4.05 P. M. by Brother Lawrence, and was organized by the election of Brother Parsons as chairman, and Brother Lawrence as secretary pro tem. Some resolutions appropriate to the occasion were then offered; but the meeting deeming their revision necessary, the following were appointed a committee for that purpose: Brothers Holmes, Parkman, and G. H. Adams. The resolutions as revised were unanimously adopted, and were as follows:—

It was then voted to send a copy of the above resolutions to the wife and parents of our departed classmate, and also to the daily papers for publication. On motion of Brother Mann this order was reconsidered; and it was voted that, instead of printing the resolutions, the papers should contain merely a notice of the meeting and its proceedings.

Adjourned 5 P. M.

A. A. LAWRENCE, Sec. pro tem.
THOS. B. TICKNOR, Secretary.

SECOND MEETING, NOV. 18, 1871.

The meeting was held at the Tremont House, in accordance with the call of the Secretary, to pay respect to the memory of our late classmate Fred Wadsworth Loring.

The meeting was called to order at 3.40 P. M., and Brother Chamberlin was elected Chairman. Some discussion ensued with regard to the propriety of following the usual custom of passing resolutions. On motion of Brother L. Curtis, the Chairman appointed Brothers Wolcott, Soule, Cole, and the Secretary, to draw up resolutions.

The resolutions as presented by the Committee were, on motion of Brother Parkman, substantially adopted. The following is a copy : —

THOS. B. TICKNOR, Secretary.

THIRD MEETING, APRIL 9, 1872.

The meeting was held at the Tremont House, in accordance with the call of the Secretary, to pay respect to the memory of our late classmate Roger Williams Swain.

The meeting was called to order at 3.30 P. M., with Brother Wolcott in the chair. The subject of resolutions, which had been discussed at the previous meeting, was brought up; and by request the Chairman made some interesting statements as to the custom of some of the older classes on similar occasions. These ideas were afterwards embodied in the resolutions which will be found in the latter part of this Report.

On motion the Chair appointed Brothers Vaughan, Mann, and Ticknor to draw up resolutions, which were adopted on presentation, and were as follows : —

[Resolutions.]

It was then moved that a copy of the resolutions be sent to the family; and the Secretary was directed to insert a notice of the meeting and its proceedings in the Boston papers, but not to print the resolutions themselves.

The following resolution, with amendments, was then offered by the Secretary and adopted : —

Whereas, In the opinion of this meeting, the usual method of drawing up and publishing resolutions as a token of respect to the memory of classmates is not only unsatisfactory in itself, but poorly expresses the true sentiment of the Class, and is attended with an undesirable publicity :

Resolved, That we recommend that the Class, at its next annual meeting in June, adopt the following or a similar resolution : —

Resolved, That upon the death of any member of the Class, the Secretary shall be authorized to request one or more of the intimate friends of the deceased to draw up appropriate resolutions, which, with a short sketch of his life, shall be presented to the Class at its next regular meeting. On acceptance a copy shall be sent to the family ; but the usual plan of putting them into public print shall be dispensed with.

On motion of Brother Mann, the Secretary was authorized, in case of such necessity previous to the next regular meeting, to act in accordance with the tenor of the above resolution.

Adjourned 4.15 P. M.

THOS. B. TICKNOR, Secretary.

FOURTH MEETING, JUNE 26, 1872.

The meeting was held at Holworthy 12, and was called to order at 11.15 A. M. Brother Holmes was elected Chairman.

The Secretary's reports of the previous meetings were read and accepted, as also the report of the Class finances.

The resolution presented for consideration in the Secretary's report of the meeting of April 9, 1872, was adopted. (For text see above.)

A statement was made with respect to the action taken by the Secretary in ordering a Class-cradle ornament, which action was ratified by the meeting, and a vote of thanks passed.

Adjourned.

THOS. B. TICKNOR, Secretary.

FIFTH MEETING, DEC. 3, 1872.

The meeting was held at the Tremont House, Boston, at 3.45 P. M., at the request of eight members of the Class, in aid of a Class subscription for the assistance of the College, after the heavy losses inflicted by the Boston fire of Nov. 9 and 10. Brother Soule occupied the chair. After some discussion on the resources of the Class, it was voted, —

That the Secretary be requested to issue immediately a circular to the Class, calling on every member to subscribe whatever he may be able to a Relief Fund, which shall be paid to the College Treasurer on the first of January, 1873, as the contribution of the Class of 1870 ;

And that fifty dollars be taken from this year's income of the Class Fund to form a nucleus for the Relief Fund, should the Class consent to such expenditure.

A subscription list was then opened, and the meeting was adjourned.

THOS. B. TICKNOR, Secretary.

SIXTH MEETING, JUNE 25, 1873.

The meeting was held at Holworthy 12, at noon. The records of the previous meetings were read and approved, also the statement of the Class finances. The advisability of changing the Class Triennial to the same year as the College Triennial was brought before the meeting; and, on motion of Brother G. H. Adams, it was Voted, That the next Class Triennial be celebrated in the usual way, in 1875, instead of 1876, and thereafter in regular course.

Adjourned.

THOS. B. TICKNOR, Secretary.

SEVENTH MEETING, JUNE 24, 1874.

The meeting was held in Holworthy Hall, at noon. The records of the previous meeting were read and approved, also the statement of the Class finances.

Adjourned.

THOS. B. TICKNOR, Secretary.

EIGHTH MEETING, JUNE 30, 1875.

The meeting was held at Holworthy 12, at noon. The records of the previous meeting and also the statement of the Class finances were read and approved. The action of the Secretary in purchasing two punch-bowls, at a cost of twenty-four dollars, was ratified. Appropriate action was taken on the death of Brother Crosby; a sketch of his life, and resolutions expressing the sentiment of the Class, being read.

Voted, That the Secretary send a copy of these proceedings to the family of our late classmate.

Adjourned.

THOS. B. TICKNOR, Secretary.

NINTH MEETING, JUNE 28, 1876.

The meeting was held at Holworthy 13, at noon. The records of the previous meeting and the financial statement were read and approved. The death of Brother Hinkley was announced, and appropriate action in accordance with the standing rules taken. A letter from Mr. William Crosby, in response to the action of the Class at the death of Brother Crosby, was read. The Secretary asked the opinion of the Class as to the desirability of collecting data respecting former members of the Class, to be printed in subsequent reports. It was voted to leave the matter in the hands of the Secretary, with the suggestion that any information which could be obtained would be gladly received. It was voted that the resolution respecting the date of the Triennial Dinner should be construed to mean every three years from 1878, irrespective of the University Celebration.

Adjourned.

THOS. B. TICKNOR, Secretary.

TENTH MEETING, JUNE 27, 1877.

The meeting was held at Holworthy 12, at noon. The records of the previous meeting and the financial statement were read and approved. The Secretary announced the death of Brother Godon, and stated that, owing to business engagements, the member of the Class who was to write the customary sketch and resolutions had been unable to do so, but that proper action would be taken before printing the next Class Report. A circular from Judge Hoar and others, in relation to the recent method of celebrating Commencement, was then read, and its contents approved.

Adjourned.

THOS. B. TICKNOR, Secretary.

ELEVENTH MEETING, JUNE 26, 1878.

The meeting was held at Stoughton 11, at noon, Brother G. H. Adams in the chair. The records of the previous meeting and the financial statement were read and approved. The Secretary announced that, owing to the small number of the replies to his circulars, he had been unable to prepare the customary Triennial

Report. Interesting statements were presented concerning classmates Godon, Greene, and Brown, who had died within the past two years: these statements were furnished by Brothers Holmes, Wilby, and Fernald. Some discussion ensued on the advisability of celebrating the Decennial Commencement Meeting in a special way; but the sentiment of the meeting was opposed to such action, although no formal vote was reached.

Adjourned.

THOS. B. TICKNOR, Secretary.

TWELFTH MEETING, JUNE 25, 1879.

The meeting was called to order at noon by the Secretary, and Brother Holmes was chosen chairman. After reading the usual records, the Secretary read the following vote on behalf of the Committee on the Class Subscription Fund:—

Voted, That when the Class Fund shall no longer be necessary for Class uses, it shall be transferred to the Trustees of the Class Subscription Fund, provided that in the mean time no other disposition is made of it. After some discussion, the question was put and lost. On motion of Brother Parkman, it was unanimously voted that a special Decennial Celebration be held on Commencement, 1880, and that a committee of three be appointed to carry the plan into effect. The committee as chosen consisted of Ticknor, Parkman, and G. H. Adams. It was also voted that hereafter the Class Dinners take place once in five years, on the dates of College Celebration.

Adjourned.

THOS. B. TICKNOR, Secretary.

THIRTEENTH MEETING, JUNE 30, 1880.

The meeting was held at Thayer 45, at noon. The Secretary's Report from graduation to June 1, 1880, was presented in print; also the statements of the Class and Class Subscription Funds.—Accepted.

Adjourned.

THOS. B. TICKNOR, Secretary.

FOURTEENTH MEETING, JUNE 28, 1882.

The meeting was held at Thayer 45, at noon. The Secretary presented the financial statement, which was accepted. The death of Ethelbert Mills Low was announced; and in accordance with the rules, the preparation of a suitable sketch of his life was left in the hands of the Secretary.

Adjourned.

THOS. B. TICKNOR, Secretary.

FIFTEENTH MEETING, JUNE 25, 1884.

The meeting was held at Thayer 45, at noon. The Secretary presented the financial statement, which was accepted. The following were appointed a committee to arrange for the Class Dinner to be given in June, 1885: Wolcott, Parrish, Weston, Parkman, and Ticknor.

Adjourned.

THOS. B. TICKNOR, Secretary.

SIXTEENTH MEETING, JUNE 29, 1887.

The meeting was held at Thayer 45, at noon. The Secretary presented the financial statement, which was accepted. The Secretary recommended the election of a new Class Committee, distance from Cambridge preventing the old Committee from continuing in office; and presented the resignations of Hale and Lunt. These resignations were accepted, the Committee discharged, and a new committee elected, consisting of Lawrence, Winsor, and Vaughan.
